OVER HE GOES!

A High Jumper Is Not Always a Good

Hunter and Fencer. There is a difference, The Horseman sys, between the mere high jumping corse that can take a seven barred gate in the show ring and the horse that can take a leap over fence and ditch mile after mile in following fox hounds. The latter is the real hunter. He is shown in the accompanying illustration. The high jumper lears simply up and down again. The hopter must take a flying leap as he runs and lose no time.

Since riding to hounds after alleged ing to a limited extent of hunters will be profitable. The following on the breeding of these animals is from The Horseman:

The development of "fencers" and high jumpers is, up to a certain point, along the same lines. Good management and experience alone will "make" a bunter, after he has received his initiatory lessons, and the same may be said of the high jumper, but the schooling of the one is directed toward good manners in general, and at fences in particular, while that of the other is only in the direction of clearing the highest bar possible. Of the two the kind portrayed in this issue is the more valuable. Touching the hunter's size, form and quality, it may be said that the desirable size ranges from 151/2 to 16 handsgreater height is only needed for carrying riders of 220 pounds and upward. Closely knit form, clean cut head and neck of good length, shoulders sloping, back short and stout, quarters powerful and plentifully muscled, with strong bone, are essential qualities of the true hunter. Moreover, he should be "a horse in front of the saddle." Short necked and straight shouldered ones never make good hunters. The leggy kind will not stand work, but a certain amount of reach is requisite for gallopamount of reach is requisite for gallop-ing mile after mile at a fair rate of speed. Smoothness of action helps his ground rent. I also believe in the govpowers of endurance.

For a lightweight in a grass country where the pace is fast from the find to the death a thoroughbred answers best, but the most serviceable type is produced by the blood horse and mares with two or three top crosses of the thoroughbred on a coach or other foundation even as cold as the Clydesdale, from which they derive strength of bone and the necessary size. The race horse alone is capable of siring high class hunters. This is strongly emphasized by the fact that in England the queen's premiums of $1,000 each, which are given to promote the improvement of the hunter, are awarded only to thoroughbreds. The breeding of hunters is a lucrative as well as a pleasing enterprise and is one for which many parts of this country are admirably adapted. Our market has hitherto been supplied mainly by the Canadian breeders, who by successive crosses of thoroughblood on "native" mares have succeeded in producing excellent horses for the chase and other saddle purposes. There is no reason why we should have to go to the Dominion for our hunters. On the contrary, considering the climatic and other advantages of our horse breeding districts, we should have a surplus to put on the market. Among American thoroughbreds many horses can be found well qualified to sire hunters. Indeed it is a question if more suitable types for this purpose can be found in England than in America, and our larger native mares, tracing back to the thoroughbred through trotting lineage of more or less excellence, would make a better foundation for a breed of hunters than can be obtained in any other country.

It is therefore plain that such horses can be readily and profitably bred in America. There are fame and fortune awaiting the man who will engage in this enterprise in accordance with the principles already established in the older horse breeding countries.

That Hoghouse. "That hoghouse is pretty cold, I know," said our numerous friend, the careless man, "but I guess I won't fix it today. I'll throw some of this hot horse manure in the pen and let it go at that." He did so, and the shivering hog crawled onto the smoking manure, as much as to say. "Your esteemed favor is at hand!" Then the man spent three hours saving the country by arguing politics with Neighbor Jones, who had some idea of voting the Prohibition ticket. Meanwhile the hog on that hot manure felt like one in a Turkish bath. At night he ran out, hot as a brick, for his supper and stood in an icy wind. Next day he coughed, and the man lost the value of many a day's labor before the cough was over. He could have saved it all in an hour's carpenter work. Money saved is money earned .- Rural in the Country Visits Us. Hamlin Garland, the well known novelist and single tax advocate arrived in Topeka this morning.

He is a handsome man and wears a neatly trimmed full beard. His eyes are piercing in their brilliance and he talks with fluent eloquence. He sat near the front of the stage of the Populist convention and manifested a deep interest in the suffrage fight. "You can see where I stand," said he to a Journal reporter; "My sympathies are with this movement and that is why I am here. This suffrage sentiment is enemous—it is immense. It puts the party on the line upon which it always

"The fact that Miss Anthony, Miss

Shaw and Mrs. Johns came forward and put on Populist badges is important and will have a far reaching effect.

"The thinking people of the east will now know that the Populists of Kansas are consistent. Here they are rough and unkempt with hands hardened by toll, but after all—they are the people." "What is the condition of the suffrage question in the east?" "The thinking men and women in the east are in favor of the movement. You would be surprised to see that the fashionable women of the cities are in favor of the movement, and are doing what they can for it. "It would have been death-a terrible stain on the People's party if they had defeated this resolution today," continued Mr. Garland with enthusiasm. I would not have addressed this convention if they had. When a reform party enters the field and wins, it is in danger. There is no trouble so long as they stand no chance of electing their ticket, but when they win they are apt to fall under the influence of political trimmers and machine politicians.

"The thinking people of the east respect the people of Kansas. I don't know Governor Lewelling, but I stand by him because he dared to speak out for houseless and homeless tramps. The people of the east are with Kansas, and it is only the cruel and heartless press that is against them.'

In speaking of his attitude on the Populist platform, Mr. Garland said: "I do not believe in everything they do. I am opposed to free silver and the income tax, but when they stand for freedom and equiity before the law and nature, I am with them. When the People's party can simplify its platform and get into line completely, it will sweep the whole country.'

"Are you a socialist of the William Dean Howells kind?" "No, I am an individualist. Mr. Howells has never seen the far-reaching effect of free land. There are two great classes of people; one tending toward socialism and the other toward less government. My motto is this: I stand for absolute freedom for man, woman and child, provided that it does not interfere with the right of any one else. "I believe in the public ownership of public properties, but in the private ownership of private properties. monopoly can exist except government favoritism is present. If the government does grant private monopoly to individuals it should require the annual value of the property back in taxes. The point of contact between myself and my ernment control of transmission of intelligence. The telegraph system could be made a part of the postal system-and the postal savings banks might also be practicable. I believe in the government owership of the road beds of railroads, but that they should be leased to individuals for operation. "There is a big movement on this line in the United States and I have been surprised to see the intelligent and prominent men who are falling in line. "It is rather queer, isn't it, that I should talk like a politician and political economist, when I am just a novelist? But I haven't time to talk of any-

at Columbus. PUNESUTAWNEY, Pa., June 18 .- A mass meeting of the miners in this district is in progress at the fair grounds to hear the reports of the Altoona delegates. The statement made in the west was denounced by the leaders and the men, and if the mass meeting brings any change in the situation in this section it will be through a sentiment not now apparent. An indignant protest signed by these men was sent to Governor Pattison today

Miners at Frostburg Don't Want the Strike to End. FROSTBURG, Md., June 13 .- The Maryland coal company announced yesterday they would today open the Delmonde mine at Lonaconing. The strikers, however, would not allow them to go to work. At Lonaconing No. about six went to work today. This mine belongs to the George's creek coal company. It will be difficult to start the mines in Lonaconing unless all the men go to work in Frostburg, or troops are sent there. General Douglass does are sent there. General Douglass does not seem inclined to send troops unless

At the United States Weather Bureau today at 2:30 o'clock the temperature was 87 degrees. The wind is blowing at the rate of twelve miles an hour. Officer T.B. Jenning says that the low barometer that was headed eastward is now stationed in Colorado and we may expect it to be pretty hot till it moves. He says that a thunder storm is very likely to occur some time today.

"The weather is about as hard to predict today as the suffrage plank was in the convention before the vote," said Mr.

Stealers. LEAVENWORTH, June 13. - Judge Thomas of the United States circuit court this morning found Captain John A. Ralston, Color Sergeant Frank E. Wools and Commissary Ed Hart, leaders of the and Commissary and hart, leaders of the band of Coxeyites who seized Union Pa-cific trains at Watkins, Colo., and were captured at Ellis, Kans, guilty of con-tempt in that they interferred with a road in the hands of receivers. Judge Thomas sentenced the men each to forty days in jail.

SOLDIERS AT MASSILLON. Ohio State Troops Mustered There to

Stop Bloting. Massilion, O., June 13.—The entire disturbed district along the tracks of the Cleveland, Loraine & Wheeling and the Cleveland, Canton & Southern, was quiet last night and today there are no indications of the presence of t tions of the presence of men who are said to possess a desire to blow up bridges.

The soldiers on guard along the C. L. & W. heard and saw but little of the strikers. Reports come from the different posts that the miners gathered around the soldiers and hooted and jeered at them, but that is all. The only exception was right at the camp. The C. L. & W. has a train there on the sidetrack, at the disposal of Col. Kennan, of the Fifth regiment.

A small guard stationed there was stoned shortly before midnight but no one was injured. Three more companies of the Fifth regiment arrived this morning from Cleveland, making the total force of soldiers about 800. The train bringing them down was stoned at several points but no damage was done.

BILLS FOR PRIVATE RELIEF

"Pass Immediately" in the Senate Unlike Bills for Public Relief. WASHINGTON, June 13 .- Among the bills received in the house from the sen-ate was one for the relief of Wetmore & Bro., of St. Louis, which on motion of Mr. Cobb, (Dem., Missouri), passed immediately. Mr. Breckinridge (Dem. Ark.) secured the passage of senate bill to grant the use of certain lands in the Hot Springs reservation to the Barry hospital.

A bill to disapprove the treaty heretofore made with the Southern Ute Indians for their removal to the territory of Utah, and providing for settling them on lands under the severalty act, was passed. Edwin A. Austin for Probate Judge. Edwin A. Austin, who has been au-nounced as a candidate for the Republican nomination as probate judge of this county at the primaries next Saturday, is a well known and successful lawyer of this city and well qualified in every respect for the position. The enviable po-sition he has achieved in his profession and the esteem and respect of his many friends invite the confidence and support of all Republicans who desire the nomination of a ticket of best men. As assistant attorney general under Hon. W. A. Johnston and S. B. Bradford some years ago he made a very creditable record as an efficient, competent and faithful officer. This is his first aspiration for an elective office and his friends declare that the Republicans of this county by selecting him as their candidate for the office of probate judge will add strength to the county ticket.

NOT DANGEROUS. A Man From Bad Ax Who Was Easily

Queiled. When a Woodward avenue patrolman arrived at the foot of the avenue at 9 o'clock one night last week, he found in waiting a tall, cadaverous looking chap, with his hat drawn down over his eyes and a sort of tiptoe expectancy in his general demeanor. He at once stealthily approached the officer and hoarsely whispered:
"Do you want to live an hour longer on the face of this earth?" "Yes, sir-two or three of them," replied the officer as he backed away to size his man up "Then for heaven's sake look out for him.' "Who do you mean?" "He's here and bin here all day. Wonder is that he ain't broke loose and killed two or three men before this."

"Then there's some one around who's going to break loose?" quietly asked the offi-"Hush! Not so loud. He may jump on you any minute."

"Who is the 'he' you refer to?" "Bad man bad man from Bad Ax. Bin here all day lookin fur a row. Jest chankin his teeth and foamin at the mouth. He won't be able to hold himself much longer,

I'm afraid." "And if he breaks loose?" "Then look out fur gore. I've seen him loose two or three times, and I know what he kin do. He ain't got no more mercy in his heart than a tiger."

"Perfectly reckless as to consequences is "Perfectly. He'd tackle a man as big as a house, and the man be tackles is a goner in three minits. Jest slams and bangs and chaws, and the man is dead. I've bin waitin here to gin you a pinter. If you hain't got wings, you'd better borrer a pair and

"This bad man from Bad Ax-is he about your size?" asked the officer without betraying any particular emotion.

"Jest about my size and heft." "And has the same dangerous appear-"Jest about the same, or a little more dangerouser"

"Well," said the officer as he spat on his hands and reached out for a neck and hip hold, "I've been wanting to meet that man from Bad Ax for the last two months, and now that I've met him I shall proceed And he lifted the man on high, and whirled him around his head, and cracked his heels against the wharf railing, and finally let him drop with a "kerchug" on the planks and asked:

"Well, has the bad man from Bad Ax got enough?" "Plenty, sir-plenty," replied the man as

"Got all through chawln and chankin?" 1 "All through, sir."
"Then I guess you'd better make tracks."
"Exactly. Here they are." And he flew up the avenue and whipped around into Woodbridge street with what seemed a cloud of dust whirling around his coattails and rising up to mingle with long black hair.—Detroit Free Presa.

he got up.
